Series 005: Committee on Human Relations
Date Range: 1968-1975
Quantity: 0.33 LF

History: In 1968 President Cortelyou announced the formation of the Committee on Human Relations. The Committee had several purposes: to act in an advisory capacity to all Deans, faculty members and administrators, to receive demands from minority groups, and to increase communication between the students and the administration of the University. With the establishment of the Committee on Human Relations, the students had a more direct way of expressing their concerns to the University. In the late 1960's a student organization called the Black Student Union worked with the Committee on Human Relations to enact changes they thought were necessary at DePaul. The Black Student Union, which was officially recognized by the Student Activity Council on February 20, 1968, was an organization that strove to unify the African-Americans at DePaul. They submitted a list of demands to the University that included changing the curriculum to incorporate more classes of relevance and interest to the African-American students, actively searching for a Black student advisor, and hiring more African-American teachers. (The independent student newspaper Alethia supplies additional information on the Black Student Union.)

Scope:

President Cortelyou announced the formation of the Committee on Human Relations in 1968. Its purposes included advising the Deans, faculty members and administrators, receive feedback from minority groups, and to increase communication between the students and the administration of DePaul University. The materials here include documentation such as minutes, correspondence and memos from both the Committee and the Black Student Union in the late 1960s. Some reports are also included. Of particular interest is The Black Student Manifesto by James Foreman.

Arrangement:

General files of the Committee of Human Relations are organized chronologically. General files are followed by subject files which are arranged alphabetically and organized chronologically within. Subject files include Black Student Union, Black Student Advisor, and Curriculum Changes.
